

Is it a good thing to live in a different country for a while?

Nowadays, many people want to live in a different country while they are working or studying. In my opinion, it is a good idea, but it's not an option for everyone.

First of all, a good reason to live in another country is the experience you gain and the amount of possibilities to work. You need also to have a good job so you can afford the rent and bills.

In contrast, living outside include knowing the language where you want to live. However, you can also learn the language there, or attend to classes.

Moreover, the friends and contacts you make could be useful in the future. Someday you can need whatever and you will have another place than your country to ask for help.

All in all, I think it's a great opportunity to live in another country for a while because it also gives you freedom and independence. However, it's not always possible.
