Festivals in La Pampa

The province of La Pampa is in the central region of Argentina. Its capital city is Santa Rosa. In La Pampa, there are several festivals to celebrate traditions and customs.

Some of the beautiful towns that organize these traditional events are Intendente Alvear, Ingeniero Luiggi, Caleufú, Toay and Miguel Riglos, among others.

There is an event in January which is called "jineteadas". The gaucho tames a horse. Gauchos have to be brave to demonstrate their abilities with horses and other animals. They wear a pilcha, a scarf, a shirt and pants very spacious, the poncho and the chiripá. The gaucho also took one of his most unique weapons: the boleadoras.

Another competition is when gauchos try to catch steers. These competitions can be very dangerous.

During the festivals, everybody eats "asados" (similar to barbecues), that are prepared by gauchos. You can eat delicious meat there. In these traditional celebrations, there are folklore concerts and dancing shows.
