

Writing Unit 5

It is maybe a controversial subject for many parents, but we should talk about the part-time jobs or weekend jobs on teens. Is it a problem or is it preparing them for the well-known adulthood? To explain the reasons for my view, I will examine the issue in terms of study-time and future career prospects.

When it comes to working to earn your own money, it sounds good, actually it sounds ideal. However, if we are talking about a teenager, is it truly good? Maybe they are learning how to be independent in a not far future, but they have to live the present. Teens need to stop leapfrogging stages. Another important angle on this issue is that it can lead to struggle with studies and homework.

It is also important to consider this issue with regard to social life and quality time with themselves, how can they handle with almost five aspects at the same time, the same day, and the same life? If they work they have to be committed with the job obviously, I am in the belief that it is not the archetypal kind of life an adolescent can live.

Some people do not agree and feel that it is not impossible, because it is not, but that is my opinion although it can be different in the reality to be honest.

All in all, I judge from my point of view that it is better to do everything in its time. You can go ahead and try, and see how it goes! I would prefer to feel motivated and do it then.
