

A common day, but not so common".

Once upon a time there was a man who had never worked, he always had everything. He had never faced the world of work. A day, Wednesday April 4, for a simple scam, he lost everything. he never thought that it would happen, but Pablo had to start working. He quickly and unexpectedly got an interview. Very proud of that, he got up and went to the bathroom, he brushed his teeth and he went to prepare breakfast. He was not a breakfast like the others, this was special, it was his first sunrise worker. He prepared his morning coffee, like a good laborador, and ate some toast with jam. He still hadn't taken off his blue striped pajamas, those pajamas brought him luck. at the hour to get dressed, he had already chosen the clothes previously, he took his clothes to the dry cleaners and to a place to get them ironed. He had taken his shoes to be polished and had bought a briefcase, all to look more professional, it was a new opportunity, he felt that this would give a new meaning to his life. Very proud and with a lot of nerves, he made his way to his interview, although it was a small job, it was very significant. It was a small job in an office at Google, the company his great-great-grandfather founded.