

Rachel and Renee are nine-year-old twins. However, they do not look identical. Rachel has brown hair and brown eyes, while Renee has blonde hair and blue eyes. For a long time, the twins begged her mother that she had a pet. Their options for a pet were as different as they were.

Here the problem started. Rachel would say, "A dog is a better pet than a hamster because you can teach it tricks and run around the park with it." Renee said, "A hamster would be the best pet because we wouldn't have to walk it and we could sit and watch it run in its wheel." Mom said they needed to sit down together and make a list of each pet they talked about and how they would take care of that pet. "A pet is a lot of responsibility", "Someone has to make sure there is always food and water".

The girls agreed and they sat down that night to make their list. After school the next day. They went to Mr. Riley's pet store and asked him to see some puppies and hamsters. The girls were going to have to spend together the money they had saved on birthdays and Christmas to buy their pet. Mr. Riley showed them a cute brown beagle puppy and a white poodle. They were also shown a brown and white hamster. The girls brought the list they made the night before and asked Mr. Riley lots of questions about how to care for each pet. Finally, the girls said, "Mr. Riley, we've made our decision." "We'll take that cute little white bunny with the adorable pink nose!" Mr. Riley was very surprised. "How do you decide on a rabbit?" "We both like rabbits and he looks very sad, and we know he's waiting for someone to take him and love him." "With the two of them, he will receive double the love!"

Mr. Riley got them the rabbit, the cage and some straw to make sure they had everything they would need to care for the rabbit. "Do you have a name chosen for him?" Rachel said, "Let's call it 'Double Trouble' because we're twins." Mr. Riley laughed and the girls took Double Trouble to his new home, where they would take good care of him and give him lots of love. Set up his cage in the garage, you will check on him to make sure he is happy and play with him often. His dream of having a pet had finally come true!
